

TAX ON STATE BANKS
TO BE ASSAILED.WILDCAT CURRENCY BILL
READY FOR ACTION.

Measure Justifying the Issue of Shillings Will Be Presented to the House in a Few Days—Income Tax Is Still Under Debate With Democrats Divided.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The house committee on banking will report on Friday a bill for the repeal of the state bank tax. Until then the tariff war will continue. Speaking of the income tax Mr. Covert, (N. Y.) referred to Mr. McMillin's eloquent tribute to the flag in his peroration yesterday, but he (Covert) wanted to see that flag floating over a united country, in which there should be no class distinctions such as would be created by this bill. Mr. Cox (dem.) of Tennessee, followed in defense of the income tax.

Mr. Johnson (dem., Ohio) said he was for an income tax as against a tariff tax, but he believed that it was undemocratic, inquisitorial and wrong in principle. A man should be taxed for what he had rather than for what he needed; but he should only be taxed for what he had when it belonged to all.

Mr. Dunn (dem., N. J.) scored the bill and denounced the free trade tendencies of the house which made an income tax necessary. He characterized the action of the ways and means committee in framing the bill as being extremely sectional.

Bourke Cockran said he regarded the income tax proposition as the beginning of disintegration; as the entering wedge in a condition which would ultimately result in the disfranchisement of a large number of American citizens. He reviewed the arguments he gave in his speech a few weeks ago, in which he showed that the reduction of tariff would result in an increase of revenue. A tax on incomes would not be a relief for the poorer classes, for it would increase the rate of rent and increase the rate of insurance. If a man by his energy and industry, was enabled to secure an income of $15,000 or $20,000 the government would swoop down on him and compel him to divulge his business secrets and tell his neighbors how he made his money. It would create a class to be known hereafter as the income paying class. He opposed this measure because in the whole history of the world property had been always able to take care of itself. He closed with a most eloquent peroration, amid loud and general applause—which was twice repeated.

Then Mr. Bryan (dem., Neb.) defended the income tax in a florid speech.

At the night session of the house the income tax was bitterly opposed by Messrs. Coombs, Hendricks and Haines, New York democrats. Those who spoke for the bill were Holman (dem., Ind.), Tucker (dem., Va.) De Armond (dem., Mo.), Davis (pop., Kan.) and Wheeler (dem., Ala.).

TALK BY MR. TURPIE.

The Hoosier Senator Discourses on the Election Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—At the conclusion of the financial discussion yesterday in the Senate Mr. Turpie (dem., Ind.) made a speech favoring the repeal of the federal election laws. Conceding that they were constitutional, that was, he said, no reason for their enactment. He was bitterly opposed to the bill and in his warmth made some remarks which Mr. Chandler resented, a lively war of words resulting, until finally Mr. Hoar called the senators to order.

It was agreed that general debate on the bill should close at 4 o'clock Tuesday next, at which time the debate on the amendments should begin under the five-minute rule and proceed until the final vote was taken on the bill the same day.

Prepared to Take the Bonds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—It was announced yesterday that President King of the Union Trust, Steward of the United States, and Fairchild of the New York Security and Trust companies of New York have formed themselves into a committee to solicit subscriptions for the new government 5 per cent loans. They prevailed upon the bankers and trust companies to sign for over $30,000,000 of bonds at Secretary Carlisle's upset price—117.23. This sets at rest all the talk about the failure of the loan.

New Navy Must Wait.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—There is little probability that the house naval committee will report an appropriation for new ships at this session. At the present time the leading members of the committee believe the house will not agree to any bill increasing the naval establishment, no matter what the appropriation may be, and for that reason it is unlikely that any such measure will be reported.

Patents for Union Pacific Lands.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—At the instance of Senator Carey of Wyoming the commissioner of the general land office has ordered to be examined all the lists of applications for patents for lands on the part of the Union Pacific Railroad company which have been sold in Wyoming in order that patents may be issued.

HART ON THE WITNESS STAND.

On Cross-Examination Admits Killing His Sisters and Then Denies It.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 31.—State's Attorney Frost had John Hart, the defendant, on the witness stand all yesterday and kept under a cross-fire for three hours until the adjournment of court at noon. Hart's memory was at first a blank from the morning of the tragedy until his arrest, although many damaging admissions were worked out of him by Mr. Frost. In answering a question hurriedly he acknowledged killing the girls while under an impulse which told him to do it. Later he repeatedly denied knowing anything about it. He remembered that the girls were in the front yard when he left; that he came to Rockford and tied his horses in front of a bakery, and that he heard a waiter say in a restaurant that the Hart girls had been murdered. He contradicted himself over and over again on many vital points.

The general opinion is that his statement and appearance before the jury will be sufficient to convict him. His memory was the most convenient of any witness on record.

RAILROAD LEGISLATION.

Important Bill Introduced in the Legislature of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 31.—An important railroad bill was introduced in the house yesterday. Its main purpose is to assess upon the railroad companies of the state the cost of maintaining the office of the commissioner of railroads and telegraphs. Incidentally the bill provides that any railroad company or telegraph company incorporated or doing business in the state shall in addition to the other reports required by law make to the commissioner of railroads and telegraphs by the 1st day of each September a true statement of the proper officers and the affairs of the corporation as they were on the 30th of the preceding June.

Illinois Republican Editors Meet.

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 31.—The Illinois Republican Editorial association began its second annual meeting in this city yesterday afternoon and it will continue during this morning. Political matters will be considered, including possibly the nomination of United States senator by the republican state convention, but it is not thought likely any action will be taken. Mayor Miles of Peoria delivered the address of welcome, to which W. R. Jewell of the Danville News responded. President Smith D. Atkins of the Freeport Journal delivered the annual address.

Extension of the Hill System.

SIoux CITY, Iowa, Jan. 31.—It is reasonably certain now that the Eastern Nebraska & Gulf road, incorporated this week to build a line south in Nebraska from Sioux City along the Missouri river is a "Jim" Hill scheme for an extension of his system, which now, through the Sioux City & Northern and Pacific short line bridges, terminates across the Missouri river from this city. Work on the surveys has already been commenced and Kimball & McNamara will build the first fifty miles of the road. It will go to Omaha this year. The directors are nearly all officers of Hill's Sioux City line.

Charter of "Soo" Line to Be Forfeited.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 31.—Attorney General O'Connor in the Supreme court asked leave to institute an action against the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company to have all its franchises forfeited. That corporation owes the state of Wisconsin a balance of $23,948 taxes which fell due Aug. 10 last. It refuses to pay. The court granted leave to begin suit. The company's road runs through the northern half of the state between Sault Ste. Marie and Minneapolis, 250 miles.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 31.—Warden J. B. Patten of the prison south is here making final arrangements for the execution of Murderer Bud Stone. This will be the first hanging ever held in an Indiana penitentiary, being the first legal execution in this state since the passage of the law making the penitentiary the proper place for executions.

Conn's horn factory, which is conducted on the co-operative plan, took place here yesterday, 147 employees receiving an aggregate of $12,533, about $2,000 less than last year's distribution. First-class employees who received $150 last year received $30 yesterday.

WALL IS VERY SORE
OVER THE PROSPECTMILWAUKEE DEMOCRATS DON'T WANT NOMINATIONS.

Chances Very Poor this Spring—A. P. A. Will Exert a Big Influence and Thirty Per Cent. of the Membership Said to Be Among the Unterrified.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 31.—The fact no Milwaukee democrat has yet been mentioned in connection with a state office indicates that the democrats are not so certain that the offices are coming their way as they have been for a few years past. There has not been such a state of apathy in the democratic party in the state in twenty years. In former years the democratic committee mailed tons of literature and carried on an active propaganda earlier than this. Chairman Wall will not talk Wisconsin politics, affecting to believe that affairs here are all right, and he is devoting his attention to the work of congress.

The labor party movement in Milwaukee is assuming proportions which promise to make the co-operative, as the new labor party is called, an important factor in the next city campaign, if it be not in the state campaign. It is reported on what seems to be reliable authority that five members of the executive committee of the co-operative party are A. P. A. men, and if this be true the labor party will be a more uncertain quantity in the coming campaign than it has heretofore been. Officers of the A. P. A. claim that that organization will cast at least 16,000 votes in the city of Milwaukee at the city election. They claim also that 30 per cent. of their members are democrats.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY OVER

The Real Defense in the Coughlin Case Commences.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—There was very little medical testimony introduced in Coughlin's trial yesterday. There were indications before court opened that the defense had about concluded its medical-expert testimony and was preparing to present evidence to controvert the main points of the state's case as to material issues in the case. Among witnesses to be called are Detective Michael Whalen, Tom Whalen and his wife, Jeremiah Hyland and several other persons whose testimony would go to show that Patrick O'Sullivan was not at Nieman's saloon with Coughlin and Kunze at 10:30 the night of May 4, and was there with the Hylands on the night of May 5; that O'Sullivan was in his house at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening and was not on guard near the Carlson cottage, as testified by Mrs. Hoertel. James Hyland was the first witness called after the medical testimony had been taken. The defense is trying to prove by him not only that the state was wrong in connecting O'Sullivan with the case, but that the person who was so often seen near the Carlson cottage by different witnesses was not Coughlin, but Hyland. The resemblance between the two men is remarkable. Hyland boarded with O'Sullivan, who lived close by, and of course the fact of him being seen near the cottage can not incriminate him.

IOWA WHISKY TALK.

Legislators Have a Plan to Sell It in Bulk.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 31.—The committee of the house on suppression of intemperance held a meeting yesterday afternoon at which time there was a discussion of the bill to permit the manufacture of spirituous, vinous, and malt liquors within the state. The bill was introduced by Mr. Sawyer of Woodbury and it provides for the manufacture of liquors in Iowa, their shipment in the state, and sale in quantities not less than fifty gallons at any one time or to one person and the bill also prohibits the drinking of any liquors on the premises where the same are manufactured or in any building adjacent thereto. No vote was taken upon the measure, but it is believed to be certain that the bill will be recommended for adoption.

Koetting, convicted at Milwaukee of receiving deposits after he knew his bank, the South Side savings, was insolvent, and sentenced to five years imprisonment, came up before the state Supreme court yesterday. MADISON ANARCHY
EXCITES MINERS.WISCONSIN PAPER CAUSES THE PENNSYLVANIA RIOTS.

Deputies Attack the Headquarters of the Lawless Element at Bowker's Hill this Morning and Make ten Arrests—Michael Biron, a Former Priest Held Responsible.

MANSFIELD, Pa., Jan. 31.—Deputies raided the anarchists at Bowker Hill to-day and arrested ten. Except for this, quiet prevailed. The miners hold a meeting this afternoon to consider strike matters.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 31.—Anarchy is at the base of the miners' riot at Mansfield. There are one hundred families near Mansfield who openly avow anarchism. Their bible is a radically anarchist sheet printed in Madison, and appropriately named "Lucifer," and the confession of faith is set forth in the specious sophistry of the publication. This sheet is written by an unfrocked priest named Michael Biron, a man of good education, who fell away from the church when in Mayence, Germany.

WHY AMERICAN SHIPS FIRED.

Admiral Benham Explains the Detroit's Action at Rio de Janeiro.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 31.—The United States ship Detroit Monday morning fired on the insurgent ship Guanabara. A shot was fired across the rebel's bows as a warning that American merchantmen would be protected in moving up to the docks, and this having no effect the Detroit fired again, lodging a shot in the stern post of the Guanabara. Admiral da Gama realizes now that American merchantmen will be afforded the fullest protection.

The American bark Julia Rollins, Capt. Kiehne, from Baltimore, and the American schooner Millie J. H., Capt. Stutts, from New York, were fired on by the insurgents during a night foray last week. Admiral da Gama, the commander of the insurgent forces here, visited Rear Admiral Benham, commander of the American squadron, and was emphatically told that the insurgents must at once abandon the idea that they could with impunity fire upon American vessels. Admiral Benham asserted that American ships would be protected by his fleet no matter what part of the harbor they might happen to be. Admiral da Gama protested against this decision, but finally apparently yielded this point.

Saturday the American bark Amy, Capt. Blackford, from Baltimore; the American bark Good News, Capt. Myrick, also from Baltimore, and the Julia Rollins gave notice that they were going to the Soudre piers. Admiral da Gama learned of this Sunday, and notified Admiral Benham that if the three vessels attempted to go to the piers referred to he would fire on them. Admiral Benham at once replied that the vessels would go to the piers if they wanted to and that he would send the Detroit to protect them. If the Detroit could not furnish sufficient protection every vessel of the American squadron would be employed in the work of protection.

Early in the morning five insurgent tugs and armed merchantmen proceeded to where the American vessels were at anchor and hovered about them, apparently waiting for them to get under way, when they would fire upon them. There was great activity displayed on board the American warships and soon the sharp tones of the boatswain's whistles could be heard piping the crews to clear the ships for action.

At 5 o'clock the Detroit hoisted its anchors, and, with shotguns, steamed in beside the insurgent warships. Trajano and Guanabara, both of which were lying close to the Good News. As the Detroit took up its position a musket was fired from the Guanabara at the Good News. The Detroit at once fired a six-pound shot across the bows of the Guanabara, whereupon the latter vessel replied with what is supposed to have been a blank cartridge. The Detroit then turned one of its guns upon the Guanabara and sent a small shell into its sternpost and was on the point of delivering a broadside at the insurgent ship when the Guanabara signaled that it would stop firing.

An American citizen, G. M. Rollins, who has acted as the agent of Admiral da Gama in the arbitration negotiations, visited all three of the American merchantmen and offered to have them towed at the expense of the insurgents if they would not go to the piers. This the captains of the merchantmen agreed to. This arrangement was reported to Admiral da Gama on board his flagship, the Liberdade. He then said:

"It is too late. The glass is broken. I must yield to this foreign fleet of superior force. I will resign and give my sword to the American admiral."

Later in the day Admiral da Gama called a council of his officers, expecting that all of them would seek an asylum on board the American fleet, but the younger officers would not yield. It was stated at the council that Admiral Benham had offered Admiral da Gama and his officers asylum on board of the American warships.

What the final result of the trouble between the fleets will be is not known, but there is one thing that is evident to everybody, and that is that the American merchant vessels are protected in every part of the bay.

TROUBLE SEEMS LIKELY.

American and Foreign Fleets May Yet Come to Blows.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—In expressive language an official of the navy department characterized the gist of the official confirmation of the press dispatches from Rio this morning. "We are informed," he continued, "that to protect American commerce some of our fleet escorted some vessels from the offing to the dock; that the rebels fired at the escort, and that Admiral Benham turned things loose and began to hunt for satisfaction and revenge at compound interest. That is practically all that we have heard up to noon. The cabinet is now discussing the news."

Some important news has been expected since yesterday, but it was not thought to be of such a sensational character, although ultimate hostilities are looked for. The news is in effect that Great Britain was about to recognize the rebels as belligerents; that the rebels would immediately thereafter establish a blockade, which the United States would promptly proceed to demolish so far as American commerce was concerned. Whether Great Britain would venture to extend aid to the belligerents was not told; nor was Great Britain's object in recognizing the rebels given. It was also believed that Germany might follow Great Britain's lead. Combined, it was more than likely that the belligerents, so-called, would be assisted in maintaining the blockade, in which event hostilities between the European and the United States fleets was bound to come, for the American admiral will not recognize a blockade by pirates, for so the rebels are regarded by this government till recognized as belligerents. He will resist the blockade, and if the Europeans care to interfere let them do so. Admiral Benham will not alter his course. The American fleet in Brazil is of good size and it will be strengthened in a few days by the addition of the monster monitor Miantonomah. It was in the belief that something of this sort would come to pass that the American fleet was made so strong at Rio.

Pennsylvania Miners Quiet.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 31.—All of the prisoners thus far brought from the Mansfield Valley mining district charged with rioting were given a hearing yesterday. Thirty-nine were indicted on the charge of unlawful assembly and three on the charge of arson and riot. The riotous tour of the rioters means a further delay in the resumption of many mines, so that the 3,000 or more men who calculated on resuming work this week will be forced to remain idle. Coal can not be loaded until the burned tipples are restored, which will require four to five weeks in reconstruction.

ENTIRE EAST HAS A BLIZZARD.

New England Coast Owner Swept By a Storm—Life Savers Unable to Work.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 31.—New England has experienced a blizzard. The barometer yesterday registered the lowest point but once in Boston at 28.75, and shows a disposition to stay there. The wind came racing down from the northeast and northwest this morning the snow began to fall. A large fleet of fishermen should have arrived, but the southerly gale which prevailed all night frightened most of them off. They remained off-shore and did not risk the dangerous rocks of Boston harbor even for the prize of an empty market. Only two schooners of all the vessels that lay off the shore came in through the storm. In the upper harbor navigation was completely suspended, except by ferry boats, and these made infrequent trips. From all over New England come reports of delayed trains, stalled street cars and snow from twelve to thirteen inches deep, but no shipwrecks other than the fishing schooner Aberdeen wrecked off Gloucester last night. The storm has passed northward and all is clear and the gale has abated.

LIFE SAVERS UNABLE TO WORK.

Schooner in Great Danger Off the New Jersey Coast.

ASHBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 31.—A disabled schooner which anchored yesterday off Sharp river inlet outdrode the gale in safety. It is still anchored there. Another three-masted schooner, also heavily laden, anchored during the night, opposite Dal Beach. Part of its rigging has been blown away. The wind has veered completely around and is now blowing directly off shore. The surf is still too high to permit the life savers to launch their boats. Huge waves are washing upon the shore, carrying portions of the bluff away at Monmouth beach, North Long branch and Seabright.

Heavy Snowfall in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Reports from the western and northern sections of the state show that the heaviest snow and wind storm of the season prevailed during the night and this morning. Snow fell in varying depths from three feet at Ogdensburg to one foot at Buffalo and Auburn. Scranton, Pa., reports a fierce "northern" accompanied by snow, and all sections of New England report high winds and heavy falls of snow. Railroad, telegraphic and telephone communication is seriously crippled in all directions. In this city Isabella Anderson, an old woman, was frozen to death. An unknown woman was crushed to death by a falling telegraph pole.

Houses Unroofed in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 31.—Many houses were unroofed, fences demolished, and buildings in course of erection damaged by a northwesterly wind storm here. Several women on an up-town street were caught by a powerful gust of wind, hurled against the sides of houses and injured. A row of four houses in the northern section was nearly demolished and the inmates narrowly escaped with their lives. At Westminster, Hagerstown, and other towns in the western part of the state the damage was heavy.

Schooner in Great Danger.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Jan. 31.—The weather bureau officer at Sankaty reported a small schooner, probably a fisherman, anchored in the lee of Bass Rip. When last seen, in spite of the heavy sea, she was making good weather of it, but the gale has increased almost to a hurricane and it is feared she will part her cable and go ashore on the network of shoals between it and open water.

R., and the bearers were chosen from his comrades. The post was largely represented, and a number of the members of the W. R. C. were also present. Mrs. C. E. Green, who has been staying with her sister, Mrs. C. O. Button, received a telegram from the doctor Monday, requesting her to come to Albuquerque, New Mexico, immediately. Mrs. Aldrich, of Chicago, is quite sick at the home of her mother, Mrs. Robert Carr. Mrs. R. Hill is still quite feeble. Miss Allie Carr, who has been afflicted with a tonsil trouble is about the house again. In the damage suit of Bert Button vs. the C. She leaves to mourn her death a husband, father, sister, two brothers and an adopted son.

PASTOR PLASTERS HIS CHURCH Janesville Aid Given to Rev. D. W. Brown After His Novel Appeal.

"Give me money to buy lath, and I'll plaster the church myself." This is the plea made to Janesville people by Rev. D. W. Brown. Mr. Brown is a six-foot African evangelist.

Twenty years ago he used to preach in Janesville. Now he is state missionary of the African M. E. church for Wisconsin, and the church he is building is in Delavan.

It is finished all but the lath and plaster. "I can plaster as well as preach," said Mr. Brown, "and all I want is money enough to buy the raw material. I furnish the elbow grease."

"Can't you give me just two bundles of lath or a bushel of plaster?" was the way he saluted another close-fisted sinner. Quarters and half dollars are rolling in liberally from Janesville philanthropists, and the church will be plastered in the highest style of art.

GENERAL DOE SITS FOR A PORTRAIT

WASHINGTON CAMERA CATCHES THE NEW OFFICIAL.

The Janesville Man's Life Reviewed in Detail and With Some Interesting Additions By a Syndicate Writer—A Confusion as to Titles in the Wisconsin State Militia.

General J. B. Doe is hard at work in Washington, and incidentally he is furnishing material for the newspaper men. A recent syndicate letter contains a new portrait of the general and gives the following review of his life:

Joseph Bidwell Doe of Wisconsin, who has lately been appointed to the office of assistant secretary of war, is a very young man to hold such an important office, as assistant secretary virtually means chief executive officer of the war department. Gen. Doe is only 38 years of age. He was born on March 8, 1855, in Janesville, Wis., and graduated from Racine college in 1874, as a lawyer. JOSEPH B. DOE. He became connected with the National guard in 1878 as a private and worked himself up until he became Brigadier-general of the state militia of Wisconsin, a position to which he was appointed about three years ago by Gov. Peck. Gen. Doe is short of stature, and is gifted with a remarkable executive ability, and is an eloquent orator.

J. E. GLEASON HAD A RUNAWAY The Horses, However, Were Ready to Quit Before He Was.

J. E. Gleason, the good natured president of the agricultural society and vice president of the driving park association had a lively runaway that terminated by the horses being sorry that they ran. Mr. Gleason's team was fractious and as Mr. Gleason started for home and as a stick fell on the pole to the wagon they took to their heels. Mr. Gleason pulled on them until he was tired and then paid strict attention to keeping them in the road. When they reached Thomas Rooney's hill the steeds were ready to ease up but Mr. Gleason put on the whip. When they got to the top of the hill and he let them slow up they "went along as quiet as a plow team."

JOLLY TIME AT A MASQUERADE The N. O. W. Club's Annual Was a Very Pleasant Affair.

Fun reigned at the armory last night when the N. O. W. club gave their annual masquerade. Many of the costumes were novel, the most noticeable being the eight big blue bottles, each eight feet tall. The maskers peeped from a hole in the cloth and when the order to "unmask" came it was found that Mrs. Fred Young was in the morphine vial, while Mrs. L. V. Paul represented day rum, Mrs. W. A. Rossow, rough on rats, Miss Maud Young strychnine, Miss Louise Winkley, quinine; Miss Hattie George, goose oil; Miss Ida Schmidley, German Corn Cure and Miss Anna Pitcher, cod liver oil. This unique double quartette led the grand march and created much amusement. W. A. Rossow designed and built the bottles. The splendid music of Smith's orchestra added zest to the affair and all enjoyed it fully.

CITY MILK. He Was in the Trade, But His Scruples Soon Wore Off.

A young man from Wiltshire, whose ideas of milk had been perverted and abused by contact with the cow in its native haunts, recently engaged himself with the proprietor of that animal engaged in supplying milk to customers.

The second day the new hand resigned. He did not like the business and wanted to go, says the Brooklyn Citizen.

An investigation showed that after washing the cans the day before the water, as is usual, was left in them. Instead of the can which he should have taken he put the day's milk into those having the washings and started on his rounds.

On coming back he learned his error. He resigned at once rather than face the customers.

"Why, it was cheating," he said, "of the worst kind. I can go up to a cannon's mouth and let 'em shoot me, but I never want to set foot in them houses where I carried round that water."

His employer remonstrated. He had no time to engage another man and it would greatly embarrass him to get one in time. But the young man was inflexible.

"No—no; he had been brought up to be honest and couldn't look 'em in the face again."

"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do," said his employer desperately. "I'll give you ten shillings to go round this once, and if you can't stand the abuse you needn't try it again."

After much urging the young man consented. He came back with a very curious look on his face.

"Well," said his employer, "you came out alive, after all. Did you have a hard time of it?"

"No—no!" said the man; "they did not say a word anywhere, except an old woman, who told me she thought the milk was improving—it was a bit richer than yesterday. You must have forgotten to skim it."

His employer was sad and silent, and that young man is still in the business.

No Whales in the Gulf Stream.

It is a remarkable zoological, piscatorial or hydrographical fact that whales are never (if allowed to follow the dictates of their own wills) found within the limits of that great ocean river—the gulf stream. The shrewd Yankee whalers were the first to gain an accurate knowledge of the extent and limits of the great artery which pulsates between this country and Europe; this by studying the habits and haunts of the whales. It was noted that they were plentiful northwest and southeast of certain well defined lines, and that the "neutral waters" were several degrees warmer than those which, paradoxical as it may sound, formed their "banks" and boundaries. Finally it was decided, and rightly, too, that the no-whale producing area was the gulf stream.

The Decision Did Her no Good.

Miss Catherine Bitner of Franklin county, Pennsylvania was so overjoyed a day or two ago at a decision in her favor in a suit which she had instituted in Hagerstown, Md., to set aside a deed for a farm, that she was overcome by the excitement and died an hour after.

Hints to Women Who Cut and Make Their Own Gowns.

It is left to choice whether skirts be faced with lining or made on an underskirt. Both are useful in their place. A faille lining gives support and strength to thin silk, while for a thick woolen costume it is less clumsy than an underskirt and far easier to hold up. On the

ABOUT THE SAUSAGE.

How to Prepare It in Its Daintiest and Most Delicate Forms.

The price charged by butchers for sausage is about double what the sausages would cost when made at home. It is no more trouble, if there is a good meat chopper in the house, to make them than it is to make hash. The meat chopper, moreover, is a very useful utensil for other purposes—chopping croquettes and meat for salads and hashes—and it is especially valuable for chopping raw meats for soups. These ought to be chopped in order to extract the full value of the juices. Such a meat chopper for family use will cost about $2.50. A week's supply of sausage meat can be easily made at once. When properly packed in a broad mouthed jar, with a layer of lard on top, it will keep perfectly in a cold place, but it should be made as often as once a week to be in perfection.

A simple rule for sausage furnished in the New York Tribune calls for 7½ pounds of lean pork, 2½ pounds of fat pork, 3 ounces of salt, half an ounce of summer savory, three-quarters of an ounce of sage and an ounce of ground pepper. Chop the meat thoroughly, add the seasoning, mix in and chop again. Sausage meat like this is much better than when it is packed in little cases, as it usually is in the butcher's shop.

The ordinary way of frying sausages is not the best way of cooking them, according to the authority quoted. A far better one is to put them in the oven on an ordinary baking tin, turning them from one side to another until they are brown on both sides. In a hot oven they will cook in this way in 10 or 15 minutes. If they are in cases, they should be pricked thoroughly to prevent them from bursting under the heat. When sausage meat is used, cut it into squares or form it into round cakes about three-quarters of an inch thick and let it cook in the same way. A little chopped onion, in the proportion of a tablespoonful to a pound of sausage meat, may be browned and sprinkled over the sausages just before they are put in the oven. If the sausages are then served with a rich brown sauce and a sprinkling of minced parsley for a garnish, they will be a very delicate dish for breakfast.

Another good way of serving sausages is with "fingers" of brown toast and mushroom sauce. Cook the sausages in the oven or on top of the stove, as you prefer, only be careful that they are not cooked till they are hard and flavorless. They should be well browned on both sides and thoroughly done in 10 minutes' cooking. Nothing is more objectionable than underdone pork. Arrange 12 sausages cooked in this way on a hot platter, separate them by fingers of toast, heat a good brown gravy, mince six mushrooms and add them to the sauce, and let them simmer in it for six minutes; then pour the sauce around the sausages and toast.

Another way of serving sausages is with apple sauce or on a bed of beans. The beans should be soaked over night, and the water in which they are soaked should be poured off them in the morning; then put in a pot. To a pint of beans, measured before soaking, add a tablespoonful of butter and a small onion with a clove stuck in it. Cover with cold water and cook slowly until tender, adding water as the water boils away. When the beans are soft, remove from the fire. Season with salt and pepper, take out the onion and serve them.

Orange Pudding.

Oranges are a healthful fruit, and there are many ways of using them besides the usual method of eating them raw as a dessert. A good pudding may be made from six ordinary sized ones, cut into small pieces, sprinkled with a coffee cup of sugar and left to stand one hour. Boil until well cooked a pint of sweet milk, a half cupful of sugar, a large tablespoonful of cornstarch, the yolks of 4 eggs, and pour over the oranges and sugar. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and spread on the above; sprinkle on a little sugar and put into the oven to brown. To be served cold.

About a year ago I took a violent attack of la grippe. I coughed day and night for about six weeks; my wife then suggested that I try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. At first I could see no difference, but still kept taking it, and soon found that it was what I needed. I got no relief from one dose I took another, and it was only a few days until I was free from the cough. I think people in general ought to know the value of this remedy and I take pleasure in acknowledging the benefit I have received from it. THREE.

Three comrades walked with me when life was new,
And one was Youth, whose brow from care was free;
The second one was Joy, who danced and sung;
The other, Hope, These left me company
Until a day when Youth "farewell" did say
And left me at a turning of the way.

Fair Hope walks with me still, but keeps her eyes
Lifted to where the hills of heaven shine,
And Joy (whose other name is Peace), remains,
Though in her face I see a light divine,
But well I know, when past earth's toil and pain,
Sweet Youth, once lost, will then be mine again!

—Helen Percy in Good Housekeeping.

A LOVE AFFAIR.

The girl I am going to tell you about is rather pretty, and her name is Edith. She has dark hair, and her eyes are blue, and she dresses well. She has been graduated from a seminary of good repute, and her disposition is amiable to a degree which more than a year ago brought all the young men of the neighborhood at her feet. I think she won a tennis championship in singles somewhere last year, but I am not certain about that. What I can recall among her most pronounced accomplishments I will put down here later on. I met her so long a time ago that I have forgotten the circumstances of our meeting, but I guess they were of the ordinary sort. I live two doors from her house, and I drop in to see her and Mrs. Burke at least once a week. Even her marriage, which hurt me so much at the time, did not separate us for very long, and I think I have lived to forget my first rash determination never to look upon her face again. I called the night of the wedding, and I have been calling regularly ever since. I am beginning to believe that it was a good thing, after all, that she didn't marry me.

What I want to tell—and it won't take long to tell it in my dry fashion—is the story of old Browne's courtship. I make my living by keeping the cash accounts of a big Market street wholesale house, and Browne is the man whose desk is next to mine in the counting room. Our salary is about the same, and although he is two years younger than I am, I being 51 now, we both have held the same positions for 20 years. Browne weighs more than 200 pounds, and I weigh a trifle less.

Mrs. Burke, who is Edith's mother, came to me this summer and had quite a long talk with me about her personal affairs. She said that her late husband's estate was pretty much entangled, and that to keep her present establishment on Arch street going she would have to rent some of the handsome rooms in the house to boarders. Of course she didn't want to do that, and of course I deprecated the plan, but in the end it turned out that we both had to give in.

Old Browne rented the second story front room the day after I told him about it. He had been living away up town, and he was glad to get a little nearer to the office, besides enjoying all the social prestige which geographical conditions could give him. He moved into the rooms with a dozen trunks and a wealth of bric-a-brac, which, to my mind, did not become his age. Mrs. Burke was glad to accept the reference to me which he gave her, and Edith smiled upon him when she gave him his night key.

I thought a good deal of Edith, and every night or two we played cards in her mother's rooms. She and I played partners against young Bob Smith and Mrs. Burke. We were pretty evenly matched, too, for Bob played a stiff game of whist, and I—well, you may remember that I was one of the Pentecost club's prize team last fall. Edith and I won most of the games, though, for Bob was too infernally lazy ever to do anything well. And then he never seemed to mind it if he lost.

The presence of old Browne annoyed me a great deal, and I don't mind saying so. About a week after he took his rooms there I found him occupying my seat at the whist table when I called. He was fumbling the cards in his awkward fashion, and Edith was laughing at him. Bob was engaged in giving an imitation of me telling a war story, and even Mrs. Burke was approving the ridiculous proceedings. I coughed, and that stopped the game, but I was uncomfortable all the evening. But Bob had the good sense to apologize, but old Browne simply tittered for an hour over what he seemed to consider a good joke on me.

After that all my affairs seemed to go wrong, and I began to seriously consider whether I shouldn't rent every room in Mrs. Burke's house myself. I was actually contemplating this proposition one night in my own apartments, smoking my last bowl of tobacco the while, when the colored girl who waits on the door said that a man had called to see me. I have few callers, and I thought it might be Mr. Phipps, the managing partner of my house, whom I had invited to come to see me more than a month ago.

With this idea in mind I told the girl to delay the man below stairs for a moment while I slipped into other clothes. Then the door opened, and old Browne came ambling in. I was disgusted on the instant, but I managed to conceal my real feelings and invited him to be seated. He looked all around him to see if I was alone, set his hat on the floor and then accepted my invitation with a kind of sigh.

"Thank you," he said, "I only want to see you for a moment."
I offered him a pipe, and he declined it. I told him my cigars were out.
"It doesn't make any difference," he said. "I'd rather not smoke. I came here to ask you some things about the Burkes."

The Lord only knows how I looked at him as he hesitated for a moment.
"I have seen enough of them," he went on, "to believe that they are perfectly respectable people—otherwise I would not have taken lodging there. You and I are old friends, and you will take away even the slight doubt there is in my mind. Are they perfectly respectable?"

Somehow or other I managed to nod my head, but his presumption was paralyzing me.

"Thank you again," he proceeded. "The reason that I asked you is that I am going to marry Edith."

It took me a couple of minutes to master my emotions, but I am proud to say I did it. My reply was cool—almost chilly.

"Indeed!" I said. "Has she accepted you?"

"No, because I haven't proposed yet. I have given the matter a good deal of thought, but before I took so serious a step in my life I wanted some such wise old head as yours to advise me. Now I am happy, and we'll get married at once."

He shook hands with me, and the old idiot didn't notice that I failed to respond. At the door I managed to ask him this question:

"What makes you believe she'll have you?"

He seemed astonished.
"Have me!" he repeated. "Why, she's been after me ever since she knew me. I'll settle it tomorrow evening."

As he turned the stairs I noticed that he had on a suit of new clothes, a white vest and a red necktie. He said something about feeling like a schoolboy, and I rushed back to my room more affronted than I had ever been before in my life. I can always think best when I am in bed, and so I undressed and got under covers very quickly. When I had thought diligently for an hour, I turned over and said this to myself:

"The old fat beast! The idea of her marrying him! I'll propose myself to her tomorrow morning. She has been expecting it, I know, for a long time."

I didn't sleep very well and arose a little after 7 o'clock. It took me an hour to dress myself, and having no appetite for breakfast I only drank a cup of strong coffee. I then walked nearly a mile before I had decided what to say and was barely satisfied with the result. Edith was the sort of a girl to be particular about such things, and I wanted to please her fancy.

Mrs. Burke came to the door and was just as much surprised to see me as I thought she would be.

"It was very good of you to come so soon," she said, "and I didn't think you knew it yet."

"Knew what?" said I.
She pulled me inside the hall and looked at me, half smiling and half tearful.

"Didn't you come to—er—congratulate anybody?"

Then I sat down on the hatrack and shook my head. I felt that it was all over, and that old Browne had won, and never in my life did I suffer so much misery in so small a space of time.

"Then," said Mrs. Burke, "I am glad to be able to inform you myself. Edith and Bob are engaged to be married."

I arose and sat down again. I thought of many things, but only one sentence struggled through my lips.

"Does—does old Browne know about it?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, but it won't interest him. Before he went down town this morning he told me that he would have to give up his room on account of the sun shining in it too brightly in the morning. I'm going to turn the whole house now over to Edith."—R. B. Cramer in Philadelphia Times.

Texan Hospitality.

"The latestranger hangs out," expressed the hospitality of the southern frontier in the days "before the war." If a traveler rode up before the fence that separated the log cabin from the road, he was greeted by, "Light, stranger, 'light!" Without this salutation no one dismounted, but it was rarely withheld. Mr. Williams, in his book, "Sam Houston," thus describes the impulse of hospitality, which made every traveler a guest, during the early settlement of Texas:

The traveler who rode up to the front fence was instantly invited to alight. His horse was staked out or hobbled to feed on the prairie grass, and the visitor sat down to exchange the news with his host. The coffee mill was set going, if there were any of the precious grains in the house, and the hopper in the hollow leg to grinding the corn. The venison or bear meat was put on the coals, and the ash cake baked.

After the meal and the evening pipe, the visitor stretched himself on a buffalo robe on the floor with the members of the family and slept the sleep of health and fatigue. In the morning the response to any inquiry as to the charge was, "You can pay me by coming again."

The story that a certain hospitable settler used to waylay travelers on the road and compel them to visit him at the muzzle of a double barreled shotgun was only a humorous exaggeration of the instinct for hospitality which characterized the community.

The visitor was a living newspaper, who brought the only news obtainable, and was a welcome relief to the monotony and loneliness of the wilderness.—Youth's Companion.

Reflected Light.

A dead white surface has decided advantages for reflecting light over a looking glass or a bright surface. Good white blotting paper reflects back 82 per cent of the light cast upon it. Many persons are under the impression that looking glass must be a better reflector than paper or whitewashed surface because with looking glass a strong shadow can be cast, while from a dead surface no heavy shadow is obtained. The reason is not so much that the reflected light is less from the dead surface, but that the reflection is concentrated in the case of the looking glass. With paper or whitewash it proceeds from a vast number of points.—Brooklyn Citizen.

HER BROTHER'S DEATH.

A Curious Circumstance Indicating Mental Telepathy.

A curious circumstance that may be looked upon as a confirmation of mental telepathy took place in New Orleans recently in a family of importance in the history of the state.

This family numbers among its members a lady and her twin brother, a young man who for the past few years has been in business in New Zealand, but who has been expected home on a visit to his sister.

One evening lately the lady was sitting surrounded by friends, when all at once she gave a piercing cry, and placing her hand to her side, fell fainting to the floor. On reviving she declared that she had been suddenly stabbed just above the heart and under the left arm, indicating the spots. She was assured that she was laboring under the purest imagination, but was hard to convince that this was the case, so plainly had she felt the knife enter the body.

That night a little daughter was born to her, and the child was found to be marked on the places indicated by the mother as the wounds she had imagined. The marks on the child looked as if they might be the cicatrix of old knife wounds. The next day a cablegram was received from the friends of the twin brother, in New Zealand informing his sister that he had been stabbed to death by a native in a quarrel, and the date given of the young man's death was that of the night when his sister had felt the pang of a knife entering her body.

She prevailed upon her husband to inquire by cable where her brother's murderer had struck him, and to complete the coincidence, learned that he had been stabbed twice, once above the heart and again under the left arm. She is convinced that through her affinity with her brother she felt his death even as he received it.

The Strength of a Whale.

Sir William Turner, the eminent anatomist of the university of Edinburgh, Scotland, with the help of a Glasgow shipbuilder, has been making some calculations as to the strength of a whale. The size and dimensions of a great whale stranded some time since on the Scotch coast furnished the necessary data. This whale was eighty feet long, twenty feet across the flanges of the tail, and weighed 165,000 pounds. The professor calculates that to attain a speed of twelve miles an hour, an ordinary rate for a whale, the animal would have to exert 145 horsepower.

Reason and Instinct.

Bobby—Pop, what is reason?

Fond Parent—Reason, my boy, is that which enables a man to determine what is right.

Bobby—And what is instinct?

Fond Parent—Instinct is that which tells a woman that she is right, whether she is or not.—Life.

Willing to Lose Them.

Mrs. Hylife—Why do you think Mrs. Skekles doesn't tell the truth about the price of her diamonds?

Mrs. Hotong—She wears them to receptions where they haven't engaged detectives.—Chicago Record.

Sympathetic Suffering.

Wiggs—What's the trouble, old man?

Wiggs—Oh, I'm suffering from a bad attack of indigestion, that's all.

Wiggs—Been indiscreet about your diet, eh?

Wiggs—Yes; I had bread and milk at the restaurant for lunch the other day and the man who sat opposite to me at the table had plain lobster served in vinegar. I've been suffering pangs of agony ever since.

More Than She Could Stand.

Nodd—I see that Hapstock has separated from his wife.

Todd—That's strange. She only got back from a trip the other day.

Nodd—I know it. But while she was away he used a lamp shade she had made to cover the cheese with.—Truth.

HENRY P. REITZ

The Famous Second Baseman of the Baltimore Club.

Henry P. Reitz, the clever second baseman of the Baltimore club, of the National league and American association, was born June 29, 1867, at Chicago, Ill., and it was with the amateur team of the Chicago City league that he learned to play ball. He soon gained quite a local reputation as a fielder, batter and base runner. He first played professionally in 1890, with the Sacramento club, of the California league, and made a final record for himself, his fielding, batting and base running being of the highest order. He began the season of 1891 with the Rochester club, of the eastern association, but as he was not enjoying good health he was released before the season was far advanced, when he returned to the Pacific slope and joined the Sacramento club of the California league, finishing out the season with that club, he again doing creditable work, leading all the second basemen in the official fielding averages of the California league in the forty-three championship games he filled that position. He also led the short stops in the thirty-eight games that he played that position. Besides he ranked well up in the official batting averages of that league. In 1892 he played with the San Francisco club, also of the California league, and gained such renown during that season that his services were in great demand by the clubs of the National league and American association. He received many tempting offers from eastern managers, but, after careful consideration, finally decided to accept the one submitted by the Baltimore club, he filling the second base position during the past championship season in no fewer than 130 championship contests, while his work in that position was up to the standard.

HENRY REITZ.

A BAD YEAR

Was That of 1893 Passed for the Professional Oarsmen.

If 1893 was bad for professional boxers it has been worse for professional rowers. The year opened very encouragingly for the latter, and last spring it looked as if there was going to be a great revival of that good old sport. Stansbury, the world's champion, was here, and it was generally believed that he and Gaudaur would row for the title. Numerous other races were talked of, and all that came out of them was a race between Gaudaur and Hanlan. This contest evoked little interest, as the result was a foregone conclusion. Hanlan's day had gone, and Gaudaur very easily beat him.

But Gaudaur declined to row Stansbury on anything like fair terms, and that killed all the good prospects of the year. The Texas regatta had aroused an interest in sculling, mostly because Stansbury took part in it. Gaudaur won first prize, and it looked as if he would be eager to tackle the Australian. But it was thought that Stansbury had "something up his sleeve," and the Canadian fought shy of him. Thus, once more, a growing interest in sculling was killed.

The year has not, as far as known, introduced to us one solitary young man who gives promise of being a really good sculler. This is discouraging when we remember that during the year we have seen the last of Hanlan. True, the latter is a Canadian, but he has been so much identified with American sculling that we have for years looked upon him as one of ourselves. Well, he has gone from the course with his extraordinary record, and there is no rank of younger ones from which we can expect to find a man to replace him. This is a very doleful feature of 1893.—Sporting Life.

Courtship in a Graveyard.

A graveyard is not a very cheerful place for courtship, yet there seems to be a good deal of billing and cooing going on in the Northwood cemetery at Germantown, Pa. The directors have found it necessary to erect at the entrance a sign bearing these words: "Flirting is Prohibited."

SPORTING NOTES.

The Charleston club has engaged Ollie Beard as player-manager.

The Washington players have been ordered to report March 12 for indoor training.

New Orleans has signed outfielder A. L. Kennedy, late of the St. Joseph (Mo.) club.

N. A. Bushe, '94, of Newburg, Vt., has been elected president of the Dartmouth Athletic association.

Albert A. Sprague, of Chicago, has been appointed temporary captain of the Harvard Freshman crew.

There is no truth in the story that Boston contemplated signing the Yale short stop, Murphy, to take Long's place.

The ten-round fight, at Chicago, between Jack McAuliffe and Jim Ryan, the Australian middle-weight, was won by McAuliffe, despite his poor condition. Ryan is suspected of having thrown the fight.

THE JURY SYSTEM.

Traced to the Town Meetings in Vogue in Ancient England.

Certain customs of the ancient English town meeting are believed to have a connection with the origin of the jury, says the Detroit Free Press. An injured person would stand in a formal manner a charge against his supposed injurer. The accused person would deny in a formal way the truth of the charge. Each party would seek to establish the truth of his statement by calling upon his supporters to join hands and swear to the truth of his word. The one who could get twelve men to swear with him would usually carry the voice of the meeting and win his case. The twelve who swore together to the same thing were not jurors, yet the custom is supposed to have some connection with the origin of juries. When William the Conqueror with his army entered England, 1066, and finally settled down to rule the land, he, in order to secure information as to the condition of the kingdom, demanded a general survey and census of the realm. One method employed was to require twelve men of the neighborhood to give the facts under oath. From this usage of gaining information there grew up in the courts the practice of deciding disputes by the same agency.

Rural claimants to an estate were decided by the oath of twelve men, and were presented to the court for trial by the oath of twelve men.

Trial by ordeal and trial by battle were also methods of deciding cases by twelve sworn witnesses. It was when other ways failed that the ordeal was ordered. The English method of witnesses or jurors, called purgation, was extended to the surrounding country. As trial by battle and the ordeal was discontinued the custom became universal of forming a jury of twelve to decide the guilt or innocence of one presented for trial. This body was called a petit jury, in distinction from the larger body which made the accusation or indictment, and received the name of the grand jury.

In the time of Edward III., 1327, witnesses were added to the jury. One hundred years later witnesses were no longer added to the jury, but were examined and cross examined in open court. Jurymen used their own knowledge of the facts in making up their minds until 300 years later, when they were required to decide wholly upon evidence given in open court. The jury system was transplanted to America from England. Some of the states have abolished the grand jury; in some a grand jury may be composed of only five persons. In some states juries of less number than twelve are authorized in some of the lower courts.

Sneezing Provokes Anger.

Why is it that it makes nearly every one angry to sneeze? One will generally hear an exclamation of impatience after a sneeze. I heard a gentleman let off several of these staccato explosions the other day, and between every snort he gave vent to lively expressions of sulphuric adjectives. Asked why he did it he said he always had to sneeze when he didn't want to. It interrupted his business and jarred him from center to circumference, and he didn't like it. It was a useless and harrowing expenditure of time. Women do not like to sneeze. They may give vent to even so small a "cat sneeze," but it causes them to make such unbecoming faces, disturbs their composure, disarranges their hair, their bonnets, and sets them all on edge, and they haven't any use for it anyway. And yet scientists say the sneeze is beneficial; that it is a healthful provision of nature; shakes up the constitution and prevents clogging and sluggishness of the circulation. This may be true, but mankind would much prefer some other method of regulating constitutional matters.

The Germans have, it is said, discovered that a satisfactory kind of paper can be made from the refuse hops that have hitherto gone to waste in breweries.

A Perfect Cure

Mr. Joel H. Austin is a man very highly esteemed by all who know him. He is now pension attorney at Goshen, Ind., and was for 20 years a Baptist missionary minister. He says: "I suffered years with swelling of my limbs, at times very painful, especially at night. I could not sleep. I have taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and for weeks there has not been any swelling of my feet and limbs. I have also suffered for years with catarrh in the head, which was working down into my

Why?

Why is Strictly Pure White Lead the best paint? Because it will outlast all other paints, give a handsomer finish, better protection to the wood, and the first cost will be less. If Barytes and other adulterants of white lead are "just as good" as Strictly Pure White Lead, why are all the adulterated white leads always branded Pure, or

"Strictly Pure White Lead?"

This Barytes is a heavy white powder (ground stone), having the appearance of white lead, worthless as a paint, costing only about a cent a pound, and is only used to cheapen the mixture. What shoddy is to cloth, Barytes is to paint. Be careful to use only old and standard brands of white lead.

"Southern" "Red Seal" "Collier" "Shipman"

are strictly pure, "Old Dutch" process brands, established by a lifetime of use. For colors use National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors with Strictly Pure White Lead.

REV. BOWE MUST PAY $5000 TO MRS. FORD

THE EDGERTON SLANDER CASE
DECIDED AT MADISON.

Jury Were Out Six Hours Before they Could Decide But Finally Agreed Upon a Verdict—Case Grew Out of the Priest's Sending Objectionable Valentines By Mail.

Two years ago next St. Valentine's day, Rev. Father J. F. Bowe, of Edgerton, sent his cousin, Mrs. Carrie F. Ford, a comic valentine.

While the valentine cost only one cent, it did $5,000 worth of damage to the character of Mrs. Ford. Such was the decision of a Dane county circuit court jury who tried the case at Madison.

Rev. Father Bowe is the priest in charge of the Edgerton Catholic church. Mrs. Ford is his cousin, and kept house for him. M. H. Ford, a shoe merchant, made love to her and was accepted. Rev. Father Bowe opposed the match, but the wedding came off. Then, it was alleged, the valentines were sent through the mails, in some of which the most depraved vulgarity imaginable was manifested.

Mrs. Ford laid her case before Attorney M. J. Feeney who brought suit in the Rock county circuit court. For two years the case lagged and was then taken to Madison on a charge of venue. The arguments were made Monday, the case went to the jury yesterday who came in last night after being out six hours. The verdict created some surprise owing to the fact that there were members of the catholic church on the jury.

WILCOX BLOCK.

SOMEWHAT HUMOROUS.

He Went Too Far.

Gus De Smith (to his hostess, who has just playfully sprinkled him with cologne)—Ah, Miss Emeline, I fear these few drops are futile to quench the flame of my consuming passion. (Kneeling) Emma, darling, I am burning with love.

Emeline—I fear I am unequal to the task. I will ring for my father. He will gladly put you out.—Texas Siftings.

One Kind of Intelligence.

Beatrice—The lecture on entomology was very interesting. I thought it rather singular that fleas should be classed among the most intelligent of insects.

Her Cousin Tom (just back from Florida)—Well, I don't know. They get on to a great many clever people.—Life.

It Was the Only Way.

Burglar (rousing the sleeping head of the family)—Don't move or I'll shoot. What's your money hid?

Head of the Family (struck by a bright thought)—It's in the pocket of my wife's dress.

Burglar—That's all right. I'll just take the dress. Thanks.—Boston Globe.

A Fair Exchange.

The perfume vending slot machine is the fairest one out yet; For every penny dropped within Another scent you get.

—Truth.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR, PERHAPS.

Wood B. Byer—Is this the horse you advertised?

Liver E. Stables—Sure.

Wood B. Byer—There must have been some mistake made in the printing of the advertisement. It said the horse was five years old and worth a hundred dollars. Didn't you mean a hundred years old and worth five dollars?—Judge.

Catarrh In The Head.

Is undoubtedly a disease of the blood and as such only a reliable blood purifier can effect a perfect and permanent cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier, and it has cured many very severe cases of catarrh. Catarrh oftentimes leads to consumption. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla before it is too late.

A Yawning Gulf.

Fitznoodle (who has remained to an unreasonable hour Sunday night urging his suit)—Then I am to understand, Miss Breezy, that you will not be my wife?

Miss Breezy (sleepy, restraining a yawn)—That is it, exactly. There is a yawning gulf between us.—Texas Siftings.

Sarcasm of the Maid.

"I came to see, Miss Sprite, if you would look more favorably upon my suit to-day."

Miss Sprite (adjusting her monocle and scrutinizing him from head to foot)—Yes, sir, I do. I think it looks better than the old one you wore the last time you were here.—N. Y. Tribune.

Good—for the Purpose.

Foreman—Shall we run the portrait of Runwell, the opposition candidate?

Editor—Have you a proof of the cut?

Foreman—Yes; here it is.

Editor—By all means run it; it is so poor that it will do him more harm than an editorial.—Wag.

A Husband's Rebuke.

"How do I look?" said Dr. Kallowmell to his young wife as he exhibited his new suit.

"Dressed to kill!" she exclaimed enthusiastically.

"My dear," replied her husband, gently, "you shouldn't talk shop."—Judge.

Stood on His Rights.

St. Peter—From whence do you come?

Chicago Man—I must decline to answer that.

St. Peter—On what grounds?

Chicago Man—That the answer would tend to criminate myself.—Brooklyn Life.

A Quiet Game.

Nervous Mother—You have been very good and quiet for the last half hour. It's the first peace I've had to-day. What have you been playing?

Litter Daughter—We've been playing cemetery. Johnny was zee corpse, and I was zee headstone.—Good News.

Preferred the Best.

"There's an act of affection," said young Jimpsy as he imprinted a kiss upon her coral lips.

"The really best plays have three acts, George," said the fair young woman, looking up at him without blinking.—Chicago Record.

He Could Talk.

Witherby—My wife keeps a scrapbook now of all the bright things our baby gets off.

Plankington—Why, is the little fellow old enough yet?

Witherby—O, yes. He repeats everything I say.—N. Y. Herald.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders or astringents, because they are irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm. Your druggist has it.

A Contractor's Advice.

Dullman's German Medicine Co.: Gentlemen I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullman's German Blood Purifier, Liver and Kidney Cure. I can safely say that I have taken such medicine as that to cleanse my stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion and loss of appetite. One bottle of it did me more good than six months' other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try and get cured. Yours truly, Mrs. McDonald, Milana, Ich. For sale by Palmer & Stevens.

The Complexion of a Chinese Is not yellower than that of an unfortunate individual whose liver complaint has assumed the chronic form. The eyeballs of the sufferer assume a saffron hue, there is dull pain in the region of the organ affected, the tongue is coated, breath sour, sick headaches usually but not always occur, and there is sometimes dizziness arising from a sitting posture. Constipation and dyspepsia are also attendants of this very common ailment, always in its aggravated form, liable to breed abscesses of the liver, which are very dangerous. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters wholly eradicates it, as well as the troubles complicated with it and which it originates. In chills and fever, a complaint which always yields to the Bitters, the liver is seriously involved. This fine alternate tonic removes costiveness and indigestion, rheumatic, nervous and kidney trouble and debility.

Late Arrivals.

Many new goods arrived at Wheelock's too late to open for the holiday trade. Whole packages of French China from Haviland's factory, of Wheelock's own importation, are just in. Call and look them over. The prices will be right. Also, new cut glasses, silverware, and new fancy pieces. Try MacBeth's lead glass chimneys.

Scrofula, whether hereditary or acquired, is thoroughly expelled from the blood by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier.

A. Golden, druggist, Birmingham, Ala., writes: "Please publish some of the testimonials I have sent you for Japanese Pile cure." Sold at Smith's pharmacy.

E. E. Thomson, who is walking from Fredericksburg, Va., to South America, his journey to end at Bogota, the capital of Colombia, has arrived in the City of Mexico.

The most popular given name among the young women students of Smith college is Mary, which is borne by sixty-eight students, while Alice is next with twenty-seven representatives.

Joseph Schoenmann, serving a life sentence in the penitentiary at Ferrara for the murder of Countess Adele Visconti Modrone and two others, has fallen heir to 2,000,000 francs by the death of a relative in Russia. Efforts will be made to secure his pardon, but they are not likely to succeed.

It will astonish you how quick Johnson's Magnetic Oil will kill all pain. Sold at Smith's pharmacy; 25 and 50 cents.

Hood's Pills do not purge, pain or gripe, but act promptly, easily and efficiently. 25c.

Father Kenelm Vaughan of England, a Catholic priest who spent three years in a missionary journey through South America, from Panama to Patagonia, addressed the students of Johns Hopkins University the other day on the subject of his adventures. The journey was made on muleback, on the backs of Indians, in canoes, in hammocks and on foot.

WHEELOCK'S CROCKERY HOUSE—SOUTH : MAIN : STREET.

PRESIDENT'S HOME.

"GRAY GABLES" WILL LOOK DIFFERENT THIS SUMMER.

When the Chief Executive Returns to the Buzzard's Bay House He Will Find It Fit For an Oriental Potentate.

WHEN PRESIDENT Cleveland informs his friends next summer that the late-string is out at his Buzzard's Bay home, Gray Gables will have several more gables than it had last summer and ten more rooms for the accommodation of guests. Besides a large addition to Gray Gables, the President has also had a lodge built near the gate which marks the entrance to his estate. This lodge condesign. There are eight fireplaces. Some of these fireplaces are of tiles and some are of face-brick. All the windows in Gray Gables are to be plate-glass.

The new lodge will make a very attractive addition to the estate. It is covered with shingles. It is strongly made and plastered in what is called "molded block" finish. The windows will be plate-glass.

The man who looks after the President's affairs at Buzzard's Bay will probably occupy the "ell" and one of the main rooms. The remaining rooms will be reserved for Mr. Cleveland's winter retreat.

Mr. Cleveland has had new trees set out, and has ordered a general renovation of the place.

JACKSON'S BODY SERVANT.

Old Uncle Alfred the Sole Guardian of the Hermitage at Nashville.

Since the departure of Col. Andrew Jackson with the lares and penates of the Hermitage to open a museum in Cincinnati for the sake of bettering his fallen fortunes, scarcely a relic is left in the home of Old Hickory near Nashville. But the wide double-leaved hall door is still opened by Old Uncle Alfred to admit the infrequent visitor to the empty and, but for him, deserted mansion.

An ancient retainer of the house, shabby, shaky, black, dim-sighted, he yet has a manner that goes with a prince's retinue. The body servant of Gen. Jackson, he has a fund of anecdote about his master which is invaluable to the biographer. He will point out the spot on the veranda where the stoical sufferer sat in his invalid chair; the decaying willow trees he planted three-quarters of a century ago by his wife's temple-tomb in the garden. And then, as he did for the funeral guests in 1845, old Uncle Alfred will lead you to the death chamber of the hero of New Orleans and, himself the only living witness to the impressive scene, relate how kindred and friends wept about the bed, and the numerous slaves on the veranda outside the open windows gave utterance to the noisiest grief. The dying man half raised himself from his pillow and said:

"Do not cry! Be good children. I go but a short time before you, and I want to meet you all, both black and white, in heaven."

This anecdote suddenly dignifies the feeble, decrepit old negro into the only living man who has an appointment with Old Hickory.
